Dear Don:

You have had not the pleasure to meet Helen Garnett as yet. She is Professor of Microbiology, University of the Witwatersrand, Johannesburg, South Africa. Aside from being a charming individual and, incidentally, both she and her husband are quite good tennis players, she is an excellent scientist. She will be in the Los Angeles area and, aside from some scientific visits, she would like very much to be pointed in the right direction to see the proper museums, etc. Incidentally, she has admired some of the Paglia exhibit at 5 Ivy Lane. I have suggested that she visit the Los Angeles County Art Museum, La Brea, the museums at Exposition Park, and, I believe, it's the Huntington Museum in Pasadena or some nearby town that has the Blue Boy and other famous paintings by Gainsborough.

Warmest personal regards,

Sincerely yours,

Eugene P. Cronkite, M.D.
